London School of Academics takes account of the UK Quality Code for Higher Education (Chapter B2) through ensuring that all those that want to enrol on the Diploma in Education and Training are aware of the conditions upon admission particularly those that could result in the refusal of admission or withdrawal from the programme once enrolled.

1.6. STAGES OF THE FITNESS TO PRACTISE PROCEDURE

Stage one: Consideration

This is an investigatory stage where matters of concern raised regarding fitness to practise are referred to the Director of the college for consideration. At this stage the Director of the college and those of concern such as the Curriculum Manager and Governors will investigate the matter to determine if the concern is one of standing and needs future investigation.

No bias will be taken during any stages of this procedure. Investigations will consider the interests of the learner and the public therefore be proportionate.

Stage two: Discussion

After stage one, if the Director of the college or the nominated investigator holds the concerns to be one of standing they will invite the learner to an arranged meeting to discuss the matters of concern brought forward. This will enable the learner to give their view and provide their explanation. At this stage points of referral can be made to support the learner. Where it is the case that matters of concerns regarding fitness to practise need further consideration these will be referred by the Director of the College or the nominated investigator to the next stage which is a formal stage of the procedure.

Stage three: Panel hearing

At this stage concerns will be dealt with formally, the Director of the College or nominated investigator will write to the learner and inform them that their case has been referred to a panel for detailed consideration. The panel will decide if the learner is to be referred for support or withdrawn from the programme. The panel's decision will be sent to the learner of concern in writing and in this letter the learner will be advised where withdrawn to notify all relevant bodies including their places of teaching practice. The college will notify all relevant bodies of the withdrawal of a learner from the programme, this includes City and Guilds as well as Student Finance. Where a learner is withdrawn from the programme they are entitled to appeal against the decision made before actual withdrawal.

During a fitness to practice investigation learners will not be suspended from their studies except where there are serious allegations such of a nature which poses a danger to their peers or to those they teach.
